

ITALY CLAIMS ATTACKS MADE ON YUGOSLAVIA

Claims Two Ships Sunk
During Raids Sunday By Italy Planes

ROME, April 7.—(AP)—The Italian high command claimed today that the enemy attacked Slatina and Cattaro, an arsenal at Thessalonica, and an air base at Mostar were bombed yesterday by the opening of Italian hostilities against Yugoslavia.

The announcement claimed two ships were sunk at Slatina and one at Cattaro harbor. Two destroyers were reported hit, one in Cattaro harbor, the other at Thessalonica.

AVIATION DESTRUCTION

Meanwhile, the war bulletin said, an "enemy air force" bombed Slatina in Albania.

It was announced the Italian Navy were in "average Yugoslav" waters in the Adriatic.

Specific information on the military operations was lacking but there was nothing to indicate Italy had landed forces had gone into action.

A communiqué said only that Italy had decided to act with her military and naval forces in force.

Communications suspended here yesterday as a precautionary measure were resumed only after a few hours of silence.

Military operations in Rome expressed belief Italy cooperation with Germany on land in the Balkans would ensure victory.

Italy's attack on the other hand, declared they country a strategic ally and would be to make the position of Italy's forces in the Balkans as difficult as possible, and to fight a defensive action against German troops from Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary and Austria.

LEGATION TO LEAVE

These Yugoslav said their army probably would make a last ditch stand in the Serbian mountains in the south if German menaces to the south proved the attack on the plains of Croatia and north of Belgrade.

The staff of the Yugoslav legation was expected to leave in the next few days. Most of the Italian diplomatic personnel in Yugoslavia was evacuated before hostilities began.

The Yugoslav minister in the Holy See probably will make a last ditch stand in the Vatican City, another of the enclaves of France, Britain, Poland and Belgium.

Signatures of the Russian-Yugoslav friendship treaty entered into force in Belgrade, but Russian troops remained in place.

Some foreign, however, interpreted the act coming as it did after Russia had refused to allow the German occupation of Bulgaria, as evidence of a new phase in Soviet relations with the Axis powers.

counteract their deficit in men. If their calculations fail, they may have some of the bitterness that has fallen to the Italians in Albania.

GERMAN PLAN

The German plan of campaign, as indicated by initial movements, is to terrorize the population by bombing civilians, such as the attack on the open city of Belgrade. Hitler apparently has ordered that the German army develop its heaviest fighting offensive in areas where the British presumably are assembled.

The more natural initial phase of the German campaign might have been expected to open in the plains of northern Yugoslavia, where field operations are less difficult than in the mountains.

MOSCOW JOINS YUGOSLAVS IN PEACE ACCORD

Friendship Pact Signed On The Eve Of German
Invasion

MOSCOW, April 7.—(AP)—Soviet Russia and Yugoslavia have signed a treaty of friendship and non-aggression, which provides for mutual assistance in the event of aggression.

The treaty was signed in Moscow Sunday, just when German forces began their invasion of that Balkan kingdom.

The agreement said the pact was signed Saturday by the Russian premier, Vyacheslav Molotov, and the Yugoslav minister to Moscow, Miroslav Groljevic.

The pact was signed by the people of Yugoslavia did not wait war and hailed the Soviet's new pact of friendship with Yugoslavia as an "outstanding milestone" in efforts of the two countries to preserve peace.

Although Pravda, the Communist press newspaper, said the pact was "significant" and "important," it did not mention the pact's contents.

U.S. ACTS TO EXPEDITE AID TO YUGOSLAVS

Military Supplies To Help
Nations Resist German
Invasion

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—The United States government Sunday ordered military and other supplies sent to Yugoslavia to help her resist German "barbaric invasion."

Secretary of State Cordell Hull announced the action after consultation with President Roosevelt and said it was in line with the government's "policy of helping those who are defending themselves against would-be conquerors."

In a complementary step, Chairman Norman H. Davis of the Red Cross directed that more than $1,000,000 of aid be given "without delay" to the Yugoslavs. He authorized the purchase and shipment of 10 field hospitals, tons of medicines and blankets and an initial shipment of 2,000,000 surgical dressings.

His announcement, made in a statement, did not mention Greece since that country already is the beneficiary of American aid under the lend-lease program.

The secretary's statement said: "The barbaric invasion of Yugoslavia and the attempt to annihilate that country by brute force is but another chapter in the present phase of movement attempted were conquest and domination."

"The American people have the greatest sympathy for the nation which has been thus so outrageously attacked. . . . This government is so proceeding as speedily as possible to send military and other supplies to Yugoslavia."

It was announced that Hull had directed that the legation at Belgrade be kept open at all times but that the legation at Athens, United States minister, that Washington would prefer that he remain with the Yugoslav government.

State department officials emphasized that the department had received no word indicating that the Yugoslav government had left Belgrade or contemplated leaving, may be on the way.

It was indicated that some war materials for Yugoslavia might be sent by sea through the Atlantic while the matter of days if not hours.

Even though Yugoslav ships now are available to carry large amounts of supplies, their speed is slow and the route long—more across the Mediterranean sea and then 5,000 miles through the Danube more than 12,000 miles over the safer route around South Africa and through the Red Sea.

A communiqué of the Romanian agency, quoted by the Swiss, said three persons were killed and three injured in Yugoslav air raids yesterday at Dobruva, Arad and Timisoara. The communiqué said the Romanian government "had not engaged in any way in the hostilities."

Bulgars Protest
Bombing Of Two Of Their Cities

BERLIN, Switzerland, April 7.—(AP)—After permitting the German to pass through their country, the Bulgarians are complaining now because two of their cities have been bombed.

The Bulgarian government claims that their troops are not taking part in the military operations of Germany and that the Yugoslav bombers shouldn't have attacked their cities.

NAZI-DOMINATED BALKAN NATIONS PLAN PROTESTS

BERNE, Switzerland, April 7.—(AP)—The Swiss Telegraph Agency quoted reports from the Romanian and Bulgarian News Agency today as saying that both nations had or would protest Yugoslav bombings.

The Hungarian News Agency, the Swiss Agency said, reported that a state of alarm had been declared in Hungary by the minister of national defense and that blockades and other air raid precautions would be enforced.

The Bulgarian agency, the Swiss report said, declared: "No Bulgarian troops are participating in the German-Yugoslav fight. Bulgaria expected this to be appreciated by the Bulgarian Government, but instead Yugoslav air forces attacked open towns and the peaceful Bulgarian population, not German objectives."

A communiqué of the Romanian agency, quoted by the Swiss, said three persons were killed and three injured in Yugoslav air raids yesterday at Dobruva, Arad and Timisoara. The communiqué said the Romanian government "had not engaged in any way in the hostilities."

Interpreting War News

By KIRK L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

At the start of the tremendous war drama in the Balkans, an initial series of triumphs for the German military machine and tragic setbacks for Yugoslavia and probably Greece, appear all but inevitable.

Far from inevitable, however, is that such victories as the early capture of Belgrade and overrunning of the Yugoslav rail area will be followed by the shattering of all obstacles to the Nazi drive to the east.

Only the series of false but to the end, at the near the Greek frontier, has made the

"THE SEVEN LAST WORDS FROM THE CROSS"

By Reverend Canon G. P. Gower, B.A., Lth.
Rector, Christ Church

NO SOONER is the Son of Man lifted up than he is drawn to Him. No answer is the Cross of Christ drawn to His Grace flows into the heart of a penitent sinner.

It is the great drama of Paradise Regained being enacted before the very eyes of those whose hearts are drawn to Him. This would be the most satisfying place of conversion the Cross attracts the powers of darkness in the soul of a man.

The world had already said "This man is already past praying for, he is too far gone." But Christ in His mighty power never desists. It is never too late, time is never too short, the heart is never too hard, the past life is never too far to frustrate the power of the Cross to redeem. The sickness of the soul of the world today is a deep seated, almost irredeemable, one. There is a condition that is as dreadful as nothing but the sacrifice of the best and the highest, the bravest and the freest will bring it to its knees and draw it back to God. If ever there was a time when the world has been in a state of such utter estrangement from God it is today. The spiritual hunger for some assurance that God cares still is agonizingly present in the cry of the dying "God remember me."

The Cross had brought us back to life again. He realized his dreadful condition and longed for a word of assurance that all was not entirely lost. The consequence of his sin he must bear but in the assurance of God he found his hope. Nothing else mattered.

The Cross in the world today, the sacrifice of our highest and best is gradually being forgotten. We are too busy to see how far we are from God. May we also see that getting back to God is now the only thing that matters.

Impulse is one of the common ailments of the human body, may, however, affect adults. It is highly contagious and can be easily passed on to one child to the next. Once it gets a start in a family, it may quickly spread and for this reason, it is a very serious disease. Usually followed by many others, it may be transmitted from one member of the family to another in the same group. When a child develops the disease, the possibility of transmitting the same information to other children must be born in mind and the child should therefore be kept away from his playmates.

It can be remembered that impulse is easily spread from one child to the next. It is a very contagious disease and that in the affected individual there is therefore a danger of self-contamination. It is usually caused by simple lack of treatment; however, it may be spread in different ways, by spreading to different areas, present for hours at a time.

This disease is most likely to attack the skin of the face and hands and first appears as small blisters. The blisters, which are usually well separated, the healthy skin around the blisters shows little or no change. The blisters are small in size, varying between the size of a pin's head to a pea. They are not deep and are flat, and in the beginning they are filled with a clear, watery fluid. Each blister becomes yellowish. Each blister is covered with a thin, yellowish crust. One peculiarity of this disease is that the blisters are covered with a thin, yellowish crust. One peculiarity of this disease is that the blisters are covered with a thin, yellowish crust.

(A) Thelma Lane shows off her pompous, decorated home-bleached hair, an head-bugging like a halo, and poses herself a woman in showing the ideal makeup to suit her oval face.

(B) Frothing of black, over, over a peaky sailor with a rolled trim and fastening bow in black dress of engaging simplicity and matching lined rim and headed round out a big ensemble.

(C) Checked up a spruce? This New York suit of chalk white with a long jacket, back buttoning and brass buttons worn with a black hat.

(D) Yarned and twisted, accented wool this new-wear with into style.

(E) South America allies itself with fashion trends. Wool and faille bolero dress, with an interesting effect.

(F) Dress and coat or dress and jacket guarantee smartness and novelty.

(G) Fashion leaders coined in Pueblo brown dotted frocks, and contrasting Palomino beige cape.

McDougall Young People Take Top Honors In Drama Contest

The McDougall Young People's Union took top honors at the 12th annual United Church drama festival which concluded at the McDougall church last Saturday night.

They received the Edmonstone Young People's Union shield, formerly held by Robertson United church, for their presentation of the play "A Psalm of Thanksgiving" by Katherine Keller, directed by Bill Moe. The Young People's union was awarded the Edmonstone Young People's Union shield for her performance of the Edmonstone in the same play.

Sidney Risk, one of the adjudicators, mentioned the next scene of reaction and mood and the next grouping.

The Charles McManis group, for the best performance by a new actor in the festival, was won by Steve McDougall who played Jack in the "Kiss, Throat and Play" ("Dad of the Road," directed by Fred Hopkins).

Consolidating with Mr. Risk, the McDougall group, directed by Mr. Risk, won the high standard of the production through out, but stressed the lack of meaning and poor staging that was evident in the festival's completion.

The work was made of entrances and exits as well as the next scene of reaction and mood and the next grouping.

On the Friday night play, Mr. Risk referred to the "Kiss, Throat and Play" ("Dad of the Road," directed by Fred Hopkins).
